$65,000 Work Relief Program Drafted

CITY COUNCIL DEFERS ACTION ON BOND ISSUE

Awaits Figures on Special Election Before Acting on Relief Financing Plan.

AGREES ON W. 4TH PAVING

Renewal of Curb, Sidewalk Projects and Water Line Extension Okayed.

With the problem of financing the city's relief burden deferred until the cost of a special election can be definitely determined, city council meeting in caucus last night, set up a $65,000 work relief program to provide immediate work for WPA employes. The program calls for:

1. A $10,000 extension of water system.
2. Renewal of the city-wide curb and gutter replacement project to cost $18,929
3. Creation of the position of city sidewalk inspector and revival of the city-wide sidewalk improvement program totaling $33,588.
4. An appropriation of $400 in additional funds to supplement the $1,100 set aside for the widening of Glessner avenue at the hospital.

Gives 'Go' Signal.

Council also agreed to go ahead with the $83,000 West Fourth street improvement and left the problem of submitting the estimates to the state in the hands of the street committee. The question of other street improvements and storm sewer extensions was deferred until a later date.

On the problem of financing relief for the balance of the year, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley told the councilmen that "it will take $50,000 to carry the load for the next nine months and it is up to us to get the money as quickly as possible."

Points to Relief Burden.

Kelley called the attention of council to the fact that the relief load in the city "is the worst that Mansfield has ever seen." He pointed out that with the city barely 'limping along" on its fi-

Ouster for Chairman of TVA Looms

Capital Sees Roosevelt Ask Morgan to Quit If He Fails to Talk

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Informed persons expressed the opinion today that President Roosevelt would ask TVA Chairman A. E. Morgan to resign if he refuses to co-operate in a presidential inquiry into his quarrel with his fellow directors.

Plainly exasperated after a second, futile session yesterday with the three directors, Mr. Roosevelt gave Morgan 72 hours—until 1:30 p. m. Monday—to make up his mind whether he would answer questions at a broadened presidential investigation at which he would have opportunity to call witnesses.

The president indicated he thought the situation demanded some decisive action.

"On the evidence which has been presented and on the refusal to submit evidence on the part of Chairman Morgan," some action must be taken in the public interest," he said.

Continues Refusals.

Morgan had refused, as he had a week earlier, to give Mr. Roosevelt any facts to support his charges against the other TVA directors, David Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan.

These charges include accusations of "bad faith" and "official misconduct."

In refusing to give factual evidence, Chairman Morgan told the president:

"It is not possible in sessions of this sort to go deeply and thoroughly enough into the facts pertinent to the issues to get the truth with respect to these matters."

His stand resulted in the president charging him with "contumacy"—disregard of authority. Mr. Roosevelt also declared that "on the face of the record as it stands today' the charges of the other directors that Chairman Morgan has obstructed and sabotaged the work of the Tennessee Valley Authority must be accepted as true."

While the president could request the chairman's resignation there 'was doubt that he could force it. The TVA act vests in congress the power to remove directors.

Morgan declined to disclose what course he would pursue.

HUNT GIVEN UP

But Mansfield Mother Still Believes Children Live.

Continued stormy weather in California has ended the official search for the missing TWA plane which disappeared on March 1, carrying two Mansfielders with it, according to United Press dispatches to The News-Journal today.

The Transcontinental and Western Airways has withdrawn both planes and ground crews and company heads are of the opinion that the plane may not be found until summer.

In contrast to this is the attitude of Mrs. Jay N. Dirlam, mother of J. Tracy Dirlam, 21 and Mary Lou, 19, who were aboard the plane and who rushed to Fresno, center of the search, immediately after the funeral of her husband last week. She was accompanied by her father, Rufus A Tracy.

In a letter received by her mother this morning, Mrs. Dirlam said she still believed her children will be found alive.

Principals In Newest European Flare-up

Antona Smetona, President of Lithuania

Map of Polish-Lithuania trouble zone

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, Polish dictator

What looked yesterday like the spark that might set off the European powder keg anew had fizzled out today, as Lithuania bowed to Polish demands, and agreed to restore "normal relations." It was a demand agreed to under extreme pressure, for a large and well-equipped Polish force, such as that shown above, was near the Lithuanian border, ready to march into its neighboring country should its demands be turned down. Poland's demands included restoration of diplomatic relations and traffic between the two countries and the recognition of the status of Vilna, situated on the Polish border and long a subject of controversy. Poland wanted alteration of the Lithuanian constitution which established Vilna as Lithuania's capital. Lithuania claimed the Vilna area which Poland occupied and whose present frontier the great powers have recognized. Poland's virtual dictator, Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, inspector general of the army, made the demands for Poland. President Antona Smetona of Lithuania gave his country's answer. In the meantime, Germany was said to be preparing to take Memel, former German city now in Lithuania, if Poland invaded Lithuania.

HIGH BAND 2ND AT BLUFFTON

Student Musicians Bring Home 'Bacon,' Win Way Into State Finals.

The Mansfield High school band came home with the "bacon" from the district contest at Bluffton yesterday—despite two bus breakdowns, and a wait of two and a half hours for their turn to play.

The Mansfield school musicians received a grade of "excellent," which is second in five possible ratings, and which entitles them t compete in the state contest at Columbus, April 28.

The Mansfield band was scheduled to play its two numbers at 9 p. m. but wasn't called until 11:30. There are five grades—superior, excellent, very good, good, and fair, and the Senior High unit won a second rating, with Fremont topping them in a "superior" rating.

Russell A. Lantz, of Bluffton College, which sponsored the district contest, notified Holcombe today that Fremont and Mansfield would represent this district in the state contest next month.

The boys and girls, with their leader, J. Merton Holcombe, left here at 9 a. m. yesterday in three special buses, and expected to arrive in Bluffton at noon. The first bus broke down three miles out of Mansfield, which necessitated a wait of about an hour until another bus could be obtained. A short distance this side of Bucyrus another bus went bad, and the entire group waited two hours, according to Holcombe, and arrived in the contest city at 3 p. m.

The band returned to Mansfield at 4 a. m. today, tired, but elated.

Permanent 'Safety Town' Studied at Prospect Park

Miniature City Where Pre-school Children Learn Traffic ABC's, Would Serve 3-Fold Purpose.

A plan for the construction of a permanent "Safety Town" that will serve a three-fold purpose was being studied today by the Prospect Park association.

"Safety Town" with its miniature streets and small scale traffic light, where pre-school children were taught their traffic ABC's, was inaugurated last summer at Prospect park by Patrolman Frend Boals of the Mansfield police department.

At the suggestion of Boals, N. L. Kellogg, a member of the Prospect association, has drafted a plan for the construction of a permanent miniature city that could be used for traffic education and roller skating during the summer months and as a skating pond in the winter

Would Pave Area.

The proposal calls for the construction of an asphalt apron 100 feet in diameter that would serve as the main intersection of the town. It would be laid out with a curbing that could be flooded in the winter and provide safe ice skating for children, Kellogg pointed out.

Surrounding the asphalt apron, four 10-foot streets in the form of a square would be erected, enabling children not skating to play with their wagons and scooters and tricycles.

The cost of the project would be approximately $1,000, all of which would be used for materials, Kellogg said.

Gilbert Logan, president of the Prospect park association said the organization was considering several plans to raise the necessary funds to complete the project before school closes for the summer. He said it was hoped that relief labor could be obtained to do the work.

The association will meet Monday night to consider a plan for financing the project.

"Safety Town" where children played "motorist" and "pedestrian" was sponsored by the city recreation department last summer at the Prospect playlot A temporary miniature city of make believe streets was laid out and the youngsters were taught when and where to cross the streets and what the traffic light meant when it flashed from red to green. They were also taught to regard with respect the motorists who drove down the streets in their "autos."

OFF MAP NOW

Newville Vanishes as Voting Precincts Are Combined.

With the consolidation of two voting precincts in Worthington township last night by the county board of elections, the last action to remove Newville from the Richland county map was taken.

The village, in the southeastern section of the county, has been abandoned in recent months to permit flooding of the area in the Muskingum conservancy project. Former residents moved to other sections of the township.

The election board last night merged precinct C, which included the village of Newville, with precinct B. There were no pretests. Arliss F. Porter, clerk of the election board, said. The move affected 171 voters in the old Newville precinct.

Pay $21,681 For 1938 License Tags—But It's For 247 Trucks

If you have been muttering about your auto license tags that cost $10 or $15, it will cheer you up to hear of the license fee which one man paid today at the office of Deputy Registrar Frank Beverstock.

It was for $21,681.50. And in case you think it's a typographical error, we mean twenty-one thousand, six hundred and eighty-one dollars and fifty cents.

Yes sir, all for truck plates. It was paid today by the Norwalk Truck Line company, and it was a full day's work for Jack Berger. Beverstock's assistant, to make out the applications and get out the order.

This fee, which was paid by certified check signed by J. F. Ernsthausen, Norwalk, president of the company, covers the tax on 247 trucks, tractor trucks and trailors, all property owned by the company. The check was delivered by Thomas M. Dorsey, Mansfield agent.

The company operates between Cleveland and Chicago, going as far north as Bay City, Mich. Mansfield is its most southerly point.

Last year the company paid a little over $17,000 in license fees at the Mansfield office. The nearest figure to that ever paid by one company in this district was approximately $4,000 by the Standard Oil company for trucks.

MEXICO TAKES OVER BRITISH, U. S. OIL FIRMS

Assumes Control of Holdings Worth $400,000,000 to End Labor, Capital War.

18,000 STAY OFF JOBS

'Folded Arms Strike' Results In Action by President; Workers to Go Back.

(By Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY—President Lazaro Cardenas expropriated American and British oil industry valued at more than $400,000,000 today in a bold stroke designed to end a two-year conflict between labor and foreign capital.

Simultaneously, the Central Bank of Mexico suspended dealings in foreign currency and the president indicated devaluation of the peso was under official consideration.

Operations were suspended in the oil industry at one minute after midnight last night as union oil workers, going ahead with a threatened "folded arms strike," forced a shutdown.

Back-to-Work Seen.

It was believed, however, that union headquarters would order the syndicate's 18,000 members back to work promptly in an effort to help Cardenas while he tussels with the situation.

A bulletin from the press bureau early today said the Mexican cabinet had decided upon "means to prevent damage to the financial activities of the country."

These included provisional operation of the petroleum industry by the department of national economy and the general petroleum administration.

Another step was presentations by the government to all labor unions urging them to refrain from strikes and public manifestations

Cardenas, broadcasting an explanation of his act, said the foreign oil companies had carried on a "sordid and skillful campaign" against the government, which "has had the result that these same companies sought—to injure seriously the economic interests of the nation, attempting by this means to nullify the legal dispositions dictated by the Mexican authorities."

Affects 17 Companies.

President Cardenas, long noted for advanced social and labor tendencies, invoked the radical expropriation law of November, 1936, to declare the holdings of 17 British and American petroleum companies properties of the government.

2 DAYS EARLY

Weatherman 'Jumps the Gun,' Hands Out Spring Today.

Spring won't arrive officially until Monday, but the weather man "jumped the gun" today and served Mansfield an ideal spring day.

With the mercury at 62 degrees at noon, overcoats were left at home and spring garments began to appear on the streets.

It will be even warmer tonight when showers are due to visit the city. The forecast predicted more showers for Sunday with cooler weather slated for Sunday night.

Today's noon temperature represented a rise of 27 degrees from the low of 35 last night. Observer Otto Sprunger reported. The high yesterday was 46 and the average for the past 24 hours was 40.5 degrees, only one degree above normal.

ACCEPTS POLISH DEMAND, EUROPE BREATHES EASIER

Order Establishes Lithuanian Legation In Warsaw, Promises Friendly Link With Neighbor; Acceptance Sent As Troops Mass At Border.

(By Associated Press)

WARSAW—War apparently was averted between Poland and Lithuania today through the unconditional acceptance by Lithuania of all Polish demands.

The Lithuanian minister at Tallinn, Estonia, handed his government's reply to the Polish minister at noon.

News that there would be no war between the two Baltic neighbors caused great satisfaction in Warsaw.

The Polish government determined to do nothing that would humiliate Lithuania.

It was said in official quarters that Lithuania's acceptance of Polish terms was regarded not as submission to an ultimatum but as a gesture of moderation and good will.

It was understood the Lithuanian note read as follows:

"On order of my government I have the honor to state the Lithuanian government decided today to establish normal diplomatic relations between Lithuania and Poland and for that purpose establishes a Lithuanian legation in Warsaw.

"The Lithuanian minister duly credited in Warsaw will present his credentials before March 31.

Guarantees Normal Relations.

"The Lithuanian government guarantees on its part to the Polish minister in Kovno (Kaunas) conditions which would permit of normal exercise of his functions and in connection with these guarantees establishment after March 31 of direct means of communication—by land, water and air by postal, telegraphic and telephonic means between that legation and the Polish government."

Poland will make every effort to have negotiations run smoothly, it was said.

Announcement of the successful conclusion of Poland's ultimatum-backed drive for friendly relations with her little northern neighbor found Polish infantry, artillery, cavalry, tanks and planes concentrating on the border facing Kaunas, Lithuanian capital.

There were even newspaper reports that units of the Polish navy had left Gdynia, Poland's Baltic port, and steamed northward, presumably toward Lithuania.

A majority of Polish newspapers appeared this morning with streaming headlines which declared:

"The day will decide whether we have peace or war."

The issue depended upon action of the Lithuanian diet on a Polish ultimatum which demanded appeasement of a series of grievances dating back 18 years.

The time limit attached to the demands expired today at 3 p. m. (EST).

While the attitude of the Lithuanian government was reported to be conciliatory, public agitation whipped up Polish sentiment for a more far-reaching solution.

Distribute Leaflets.

The national radicals circulated leaflets in the streets declaring, "Lithuania must disappear from the European map."

Runs on Polish banks and anti-Jewish street fights began as a development of the high anxiety over the possibility of war.

Long lines of worried depositors, mostly Jews, formed outside the banks, including the governmental postal savings cash bank. The people had been gathering since early morning hours. Banks remained open despite the fact it was St. Joseph's day, a national holiday because it was the name day of Poland's national hero, the late Marshal Joseph Pilsudski.

The presence so many Jews in the lines spurred boys from the radical national movement to anti-Jewish demonstrations.

Shouting and milling about the banks, they accused the Jews of causing inner unrest and panic. As the Jews filed in and out of banks the young man pummelled them.

The Warsaw press carried uniform reports that according to their information Russia showed no interest in the present Polish-Lithuanian conflict. Denials from Kaunas, Lithuanian capital, of this statement received no attention.

Quoting Berlin diplomatic circles, Kurjer Warzsawski said it was believed there that armed intervention in Lithuania might

Renounce Russia To Keep Peace Hitler Tells Czechoslovakia

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia—(AP)—Diplomatic sources today asserted Adolf Hitler had demanded that Czechoslovakia renounce her military alliance with Soviet Russia as the price of peace with Germany.

The demand, said to have been conveyed to President Eduard Benes through diplomatic channels, was reported as the Czech government conformed with other German demands and gave the 3,500,000 Germans within her borders greater voice in their government.

End of the Russian alliance was said to be Hitler's basic condition for any talks to lessen Czech-German friction.

The cabinet council decided German districts would be administered by German nationals, shortly after Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, in a speech to the reichstag, had warned again of his determination to protect Germans beyond his borders

An earlier government order granted Germans 22 per cent of administrative posts.

It further was decided percentages in provincial and parochial offices would be fixed according to the proportion of Germans in the population. In Bohemia, Germans would get 33 per cent of the available posts in the provincial government

Swiftly Changing Europe Gets 'Breather' — For The Moment

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

PARIS—(INS)—Europe's democracies have won the right to rest in their corner for the regulation sixty seconds today

The judges are noting award of the last round to dictatorships. These are now stronger than ever and ready to attempt a knockout in the next round of this "bloodless war."

Lithuania and Czechoslovakia have decided to yield to force. None but professional optimists assert and not even they believe that either is a victory for peace.

During the last fortnight more territory and spheres of influence have changed hands on this continent than can be found in the pages of history for the last century.

These momentous changes, solely to the advantage of dictatorships, were accomplished by a "bloodless" system—the use of threats of force so immensely superior that resistance appeared futile.

But as the French and British privately point out amid discussions more anguished than any since that moment when the German armies almost touched the outskirts of Paris—there is bound to be a limit.

There must come a time when democracies will refuse to yield.

Nobody seriously thinks the en-

SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—so you'll be around Monday to see spring come in.

We dunno about Japanese generals being so smart; some of those armies in China seem to be getting lost.

Hitler and Mussolini are sure to get into an argument sooner or later as to which is Napoleon, and the only way to compromise that will be to let one of 'em be Napoleon and the other Caesar.

No Response.

BY NOW it seems fairly certain that among the majority of European nations, Secretary Hull's exposition this week on international affairs isn't going to provoke a lot of laudatory comment.

Great Britain nods a supporting affirmative, but goes right back to the job of watching the rest of Europe to see that they don't get too powerful. France adds a hurried murmur of approval, and turns back toward the German frontier, with an occasional glimpse backward to see what's happening in Spain.

In Germany, Russia, Italy and war-torn Spain there's no official comment.

They're not democracies, and what's said in democracies doesn't interest them. Not only that, but they think—the people who are doing the official thinking, at any rate—that any theory that comes out of a democracy is wrong. That's because they think democracy is wrong. Just as we think their forms of government are wrong.

Nevertheless, it wouldn't hurt those undemocratic governments of Europe to sit down and think over what Mr. Hull said—but they won't.

Vienna Is Gone.

AS A MERE racial and political matter, there was no reason why Germany and Austria should not be joined. They have the same language and culture and are mostly of the same race. At the end of the World war they wanted to unite, but were prevented by the peace conference. It might have been, strictly speaking, nobody else's business if Austria had been absorbed by Germany now—on her own volition, by an honest vote of her people.

But joining Nazi Germany was not the same as joining the republican Germany of 1920, and it seems clear that most of the Austrians did not really want to join. Many of them feared the Hitler rule and many of them feared racial persecution. And what they feared has come upon them.

"March Supplants Viennese Waltz," said a newspaper headline on a dispatch from Vienna last Monday. "Sunday In Austria Brings Panic to Jews."

To anyone who remembers the old Vienna, that pretty well tells the story. Vienna, the gay, happy, free, tolerant home of music and science and art, a playground and meeting place for the cultured men and women of all the world, whose spirit endured even after the Versailles conference had stripped away the body of Austria, leaving little more than the head and heart—Vienna is gone. The city is now a camp for trampling troops, a billboard on which to plaster swastikas, a stepping stone for new conquest. Instead of Strauss waltzes there is the roaring "Horst Wessel."

"Sunday In Austria," said the dispatch, "brought panic for Jews, hopelessness for Socialists and resignation for Catholics. Beating of Jews and plundering of Jewish shops increased. Catholics went to mass with heavy hearts. Newspaper offices were occupied by Nazis. Masses milled through the streets shouting "Sieg heil!"

The free nations cannot hail that victory.

More Trees.

THE experimental plantings in the proposed shelter belt have been doing well. It is reported that three-year-old trees are now 25 feet high and as thick as fence posts. Farmers in the plains states now ask for more trees.

The result is that tree-planting is to be increased about 65 per cent for 1938. Strips totalling 4,300 miles will be planted in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The shelter belt is only one phase of the revived interest in trees and woods. After a long period of reckless waste and destruction of this natural resource, the conservationists have at last persuaded us to start rebuilding our forests.

Highway beautifiers have interested us in setting out trees and shrubs for shade and beauty along our modern roads. Farmers now look upon woods as paying crops, to be harvested and renewed. Cities are putting more trees into their parks and along their streets. Families are setting out trees in their yards.

It is all good, although it comes too late to save the virgin forests or to bring back soil lost through erosion following unrestricted land-clearing.

Popular Trade Pacts.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL'S proposal for a reciprocal trade treaty with England finds more popular support than might have been expected. A poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows 73 per cent of the American people favoring it, to 27 per cent opposing it. Not only do Democrats favor it but a majority of Republicans express their approval.

The representative voters declared flatly that "if Great Britain reduces tariffs on American goods, we should reduce tariffs on British goods."

Accordingly there is no doubt expressed at Washington that the British treaty will be approved by congress as the Canadian treaty and a dozen others have been with smaller nations.

It is evident that a large majority of the American people have been convinced at last of what our economists have been telling us unanimously for many years—that we cannot buy abroad without selling abroad, and that one of the best ways to restore prosperity and peace to the world is to lower the prohibitive tariff walls erected almost everywhere after the World war. This is a slow process, but under American leadership is making headway abroad.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

THE WAITER at the German restaurant left Austria years ago. Today, however, he was speaking with authority concerning his native land. A group of businessmen was listening. And later I questioned him.

Austria had been eager to join with Germany. It was ready in 1918, but France would not permit it.

Austria had starved since then. If a man made $5 a week in wages he was fortunate.

Next door, in Germany, since the advent of Hitler, there were no unemployed. Men would have to be obtained from Italy to help with the harvest. There was security in German, provision for health, for old age, for education. Was it any wonder the Austrians cheered for Hitler? He was a god of good fortune coming to bestow his economic blessing on the hungry Austrians.

Freedom gone? Of course. But Austria has had no freedom. The Socialists — who resembled the Democrats in the United States—were killed off by the Dollfus regime. Now the Nazis imprisoned the Dollfuss-Schuschnigg followers. No freedom of course. But work, and money for food.

And Hitler would spend money in Austria. You would see! Millions for roads and buildings! Austria no longer would be a poor land. Yes, one could exchange freedom for food.

BUT—

But wasn't Austria 90 per cent Catholic? Oh, sure, more than that—once. But the youth had broken away, as in Germany.

The youth had that new religion, that political religion, Nazism.

Merely the old and the aristocrats remained steadfast.

MAYBE—

The waiter sighed.

"Ja, ja. Maybe Hitler would not have so many enemies if he had not attacked churches — all churches, Catholic, Jewish, Lutheran. That was foolish. Some day, that may prove the end of him."

But, today, the youth are with him—and the old who faced want.

IT'S CATCHING.

A Methodist minister, returned from Germany, said Hitlerism is a very catching disease. Stay six months in Germany and you become a Nazi.

But a German woman, out of Germany 20 years now, does not believe the German people will remain Nazi. "Hitler will trip, there will be an awakening, the Germans will turn to democracy."

What will "trip" Hitler? England? Perhaps. More likely, deflation. Germany is living on inflationary spending. England's greatest weapon would be patience. England always wins when deflation comes to other countries.

But England's peril at the moment lies in her own inflationary spending—for armaments.

The world may not face a war so much as a general collapse. Then people may turn to communism. Fascism probably is at its peak. Democracy is hard put. Democracy's saving grace, however, lies in its viableness, its flexibility. That usually wins in the end.

THE RUSSIAN SUPREME COURT

FAIR ENOUGH

The Case of Tom Mooney.

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

SAN FRANCISCO—The time approaches when the state of California will have to throw Tom Mooney out of prison, even at the expense of a full pardon, an apology and perhaps cash indemnity. Mooney has been a martyr for twenty-one years, but he is still in good health, and if he were turned loose while sound of wind and limb his death outside San Quentin would have no nuisance power. If he should die in prison, however, notwithstanding the tenderest care, he would become a sacrifice to capitalism and a lower-case Lenin with the communists of the earth.

Pegler

There has been much speculation as to whether Mooney free and sound of wind, as he undoubtedly is, would be more troublesome than Mooney in prison. That seems to be a toss-up. In prison he is a world figure for communist exploitation. He is vain and fond of publicity, and as a free man would surely go on the road as a symbol. He might offer himself as a candidate for president.

But after a time he might talk himself out and fall into disagreements with his comrades, who have shown that they are not above jealousy, even as the contemptible bourgeoisie. He might become a nuisance to them and be shot for treason. It is a point that has been considered hopefully against the fact that if he should die behind capitalistic bars his martyrdom would be permanent.

CO-DEFENDANT FORGOTTEN

There are some curious phases of the world-wide agitation for Mr. Mooney which have never been pointed out.

For one thing, Mr. Mooney had a co-defendant in the celebrated Preparedness day bombing case of 1916 which killed ten innocent bystanders and wounded forty. The co-defendant was Warren K. Billings, also a young and bumptious labor slugger, who already had been convicted of transporting dynamite for persuasive purposes and who thus became a second offender or two-time loser.

But in the long campaign to liberate Mooney, Billings has fallen into the obscurity of Paul Revere's horse. Nobody seems to care much about liberating Mr. Billings, and he has been somewhat piqued about this neglect, and with fair reason.

After the trial Billings argued that he could not have been bombing at the hour of the disaster because he was conscientiously employed in the noble work of dousing acid on automobiles in the furtherance of a current strike. He even produced the automobiles with the acid scars.

HE'S NO SHOWMAN

But Billings is no communist and his showmanship is negligible, so the cause has forgotten him—a neglect which must cast doubt on the sincerity of those who say their hearts bleed for Mr. Mooney purely as a victim of capitalistic injustice. Billings is a victim in the same degree, but if he should die in Folsom tomorrow the Free Mooney movement would merely sigh and say, "Well, it comes to all of us."

The case of Mooney is not as cruel in the physical sense as it has been made to appear by those who have made a minor industry of the campaign to get him out. Not for years has there been any actual question of freeing Mooney in the sense of liberating him from prison.

He could have walked out on parole long ago but has been holding out for a pardon, the full rights of citizenship and the privileges and perquisites of political martyrdom. He is correct in that, to be sure, but his martyrdom is no worse than that of Billings and a mere incivility by comparison with some thousands of severities practiced on political heretics in Moscow, the spiritual home of the campaign to liberate Tom Mooney.

Both should be forced to leave prison at once, for, as a member of the California legislature remarked at Mooney's reception the other day, their guilt or innocence has ceased to be a matter of proof and has become one of personal conviction.

Health Advice

Treat Habit Spasms Early.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

SOME CHILDREN are the unfortunate victims of twitchings and other nervous spasms. These so-called "habit spasms," or "tics" as the doctor knows them, are usually temporary in their nature. If they persist they may indicate serious damage to the nervous system of the youngsters.

Unfortunately, few mothers realize the importance of the condition or take advice as to its removal. They neglect it, regarding it merely as a sign of "nervousness." It is wise to find out exactly what is wrong and to begin treatment as early as possible. Then other and more serious complications of the disorder will be escaped.

As a rule, these habit tics are observed in children between the ages of 6 and 12. Occasionally, they are encountered in adults. Adults who suffer from this form of nervousness usually show a persistent twitching or spasm of the muscles of the face, especially of the nose, lips or forehead. Sometimes the sufferer unconsciously winks an eye or draws the mouth to one side.

Such habit spasms could have been made to disappear if measures of relief had been taken during early childhood. Neglect leads to permanence.

Can Be Overcome.

Bear in mind that if a child develops a nervous "tic," or an aimless or useless movement of a muscle, it can be overcome by patient training. These movements are capable of being controlled.

It is important to distinguish these habit spasms from the spasm that accompanies certain constitutional diseases. For example, a child with St. Vitus dance, or chorea, may have any number of muscle spasms. These closely resemble habit tics, but they are uncontrollable and do not disappear until there is recovery from the responsible ailment.

A child afflicted with a nervous or habit tic should have a complete medical examination. All deformities and constitutional weaknesses must be discovered and corrected. Attention must be given to the diet and the child assured of an abundance of rest and relaxation.

Children who are susceptible to this disorder should be guarded against exciting play. The evening meal should be simple and easily digestible. A warm bath should be given before retiring. The younger child should be encouraged to take an afternoon nap or rest period. Deep breathing, out-of-door exercise, sunlight and proper food are important to the welfare of the youngster.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Take the Cake.

The expression is old, as old perhaps as the first sweetmeat, as old as the urge to excel in competition, to win a prize, to reward and be rewarded, as a champion.

The ancient Greeks presented a cake to him who distinguished himself by his athletic or miliary prowess.

The ancient Romans copied the custom, a survival of which was noted in early England in the practice of awarding the winner of fighting, racing and wrestling contests with a cake, which would be put on top of a stick about 18 inches long.

With cake held aloft in one hand, an arm locked with that of the best looking damsel selected by him personally from among the spectators, and with head held high the winner strutted about in a manner befitting one who had just taken the cake.

So was born this idiom, which, however, did not achieve real circulation in the United States until the advent of the so-called "cake-walk" in the South.

The cake-walk was a histrionic sort of human locomotion which climaxed balls in which colored people figured exclusively; it was a hectic competition in which the participants strove for a cake of immense proportions which was awarded to the couple who walked or strutted the most gracefully.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

What would life be without metaphor?

A lawyer's opinion of a judge is the decision in the last case tried before him.

Observation, Reading and Memory.

NOBODY seems to know just what form of government Russia is now under, but from all accounts it is more tyrannical, with the masses worse off, than under Czar and Grand Duke rule.

It proves Tolstoi's statement of many years ago: "Now the rich rule the world; soon the poor will rule it, and we will all be much worse off!"

The reason this is true is that the rich and poor are equal in social-economic illiteracy.

Both, while drunk with power, encounter the same Law of Natural Consequence.

They undertake to rule, one over the other, by tyranny and force, and any action under force results in destructive reaction.

Emerson said: "Anything done by force must be done over again!"

I just rode through one of these huge government slum clearance projects on the west side of Cleveland and now fully occupied.

An artificial, standardized way of living—hundreds of apartments, one just like another.

Pots of artificial flowers and china animals of one kind and another inside on the sills of nearly every exposed window—the only natural items I saw was a milk bottle and a child's sled on one of the porches.

Even the window drapes are alike—provided by some professional rather than any individuality expressed by one housewife over another.

No place for children to play save in the streets under hazards, and the whole structure about as architecturally attractive as the average brickyard.

Within a radius of 15 miles of this project, in any direction save towards the lake, there are 250,000 acres of land that hasn't had a plow in it for 35 years—idle, not being used for any purpose. There are also 8,000 acres, absolutely unimproved, within the city limits of Cleveland—held by land speculators—taxes unpaid for 12 years in many cases.

It would seem with all this vacant acreage that individual homes with gardens might be provided and with safe playgrounds for children.

Slums, blighted areas and congested living quarters generally in all cities are the result of bad tax laws that totally reward land speculators and fine the average man with a family who "commits" an improvement in the way of a home with a yard around it.

These great government slum clearance projects are an attempt to circumvent congestion with more congestion—about as artificial, as unnatural as most present-day statute laws that undertake to allow the poor to eat some cake so that the rich may still have it.

Veterans' pensions of one war are an inducement in raising an army for the next.

In any event, and upon any pretext, it is never hard to raise an army; for military life, active or inactive, is a relief from home hum-drum, routine, uninteresting existence that comes to most of us under personal economic pressure.

Even in the Napoleonic wars, soldiers had better food, clothing and boots than in time of peace.

Under the economic system of this civilization, the very vast majority has not enjoyed the prosperity that is its natural right, save in times of war and brief periods of intensive speculative booms.

But as to the specific example of how it is easy to raise an army: Last week in Cincinnati I fell in with an old fellow 81 years of age whom I used to know as a grocery keeper in my home town. He told me that as a very young man he had enlisted in the regular army and served six years in the southwest during a threatened Indian uprising—never saw any active service—never even heard a shot fired save in target practice—simply did guard duty along the frontier.

That for the last 20 years he has been drawing $50 per month pension; that in the last few months this had been increased to $72 per month; that at two different periods he had suffered confining illnesses and had received the very best of nursing and medical service in government hospitals.

This six-year regular army service was a most profitable investment to this man.

I am in no way criticising the liberality of our American pension policy, but I am saying that under our economic system, men are given more consideration and material reward after the destructive pursuits of war, than in constructive life and effort in peace.

Henry Ryecroft said: "For the work of a man's mind there is but one test, and one alone—the judgment of generations yet unborn!"

Johann Sebastian Bach, the father of modern music, lived from 1685 to 1750, and only six of his compositions were published during his whole life time.

Today, to a generation unborn in the time of his activity, he is the most popular composer in all the great musical centers of the world—an all-Bach program by any recognized musical organization will attract a capacity audience.

Eighty-seven years after his death, or about 100 years ago, Peters, music-publisher, Leipzig, made the first attempt to bring out the complete works of Bach. In 1851, Breitkopf & Haertel, also of Leipzig, started their collection—it now comprises 46 volumes.

Bach, in his time, was known as an organ virtuoso—even played before kings; his compositions, however, were not unknown, at least among musicians of his day. He had many pupils who made copies from the master's original manuscripts, and these were in turn re-copied, to wide dissemination.

And these copies, by the way, were the only means by which many of his compositions have been preserved—their originals having been lost or destroyed.

For about 125 years Bach's grave remained unknown—obliterated, a roadway having been cut through a part of the cemetery where he was known to have been buried.

In 1893 this roadway was excavated for the purpose of locating Bach's earthly remains. Public records of this cemetery disclosed that his was one of three oaken coffins buried the same year. Two contained the bones of young persons and the third those of an elderly man.

By comparing skull measurements with painted and engraved portraits done during the master's life, it is reasonable to suppose that they were the earthly remains of Johann Sebastian Bach.

They now rest under a costly monument in one of the public centers of Leipzig—all this very largely at the instigation of Sir Arthur Sullivan, of Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera fame and Sir George Groves who compiled the present-day five-volume standard musical dictionary that bears his name.

The test of the works of man's mind is still the judgment of generations yet unborn—as Henry Ryecroft puts it.

Time destroys the trivial, the unworthy, and even though it may be popular in the day of its creation.

Time discovers and preserves the worthy—it is usually too far in advance of its generation for current appreciation.

But the acceptance of the works of man's mind of this generation will not be so belated as in the time of Johann Sebastian Bach, and by reason of modern means of reproduction and dissemination by transportation and communication.

A Farmer's Diary

MARCH 18

THE March hare lived for several years under our side porch. He was a gray chinchilla rabbit, who escaped from the children when given them for a pet, and mated with a half-wild Belgian hare, whose first mate was shot by hunters.

They were an odd pair, the placid, brown mother and her dapper, temperamental, gray companion—but the old burrow under the porch was long and deep and they lived there very happily.

One morning early in March I heard hens cackling in excitement. I looked out and saw that gray rabbit running in circles around a group of three, flustered, White Rock pullets. He would go in one direction until the fowls were dizzy and very read-headed, then he would stop, shake himself, laugh at them, and be off in the opposite direction, always keeping the hens inside the circle of his travels. Presently the dog trotted round the corner and ended the fun.

Another time both rabbits staged a little dama. From the window we watched the mother carry mouthfuls of dry grass from along the drive. She made a dozen trips, while her mate skipped about and gave excited advice. Then he caught sight of us at the window and began to jump and dance, stiff-legged, his black eyes popping with excitement, his long ears erect and waggling—for all the world as if he were leading a hilarious "Hip, hip, hooray!" The children were convulsed by his antics, but we did ont know what it was all about.

One morning when the grass was tender green, we counted six little rabbits, feasting. They were no bigger than a man's hand—two gray, one pure white, two tawny yellow, and one brown. At a warning from their mother they scurred under the porch.

This family furnished entertainment for an entire summer, and only within the last year have they entirely disappeared from their old burrow, which is now "TO LET."—By C. A. B.

STUDY JUVENILE DELINQUENCY, CAUSES, REMEDY AT ASHLAND

ASHLAND — A representative audience of law enforcement officials, college students and private citizens attended the second annual Ashland College Law Enforcement institute held in the county courthouse assembly room in a three session program Friday.

Featuring speakers who are well known for their work among the youth, the institute provided for a comprehensive study of juvenile delinquency and its causes.

At the morning session of the institute Floyd Dent and Russel Gimbel of Mansfield, presented a survey of causes for crime among the youth of their city. As a conclusion of their remarks, they stated that a break down in home life and lack of proper environment led the list of causes for crime.

Dr. Herman M. Gunn, advocate of the Ashland test as a means of detecting and convicting the drunken driver, traced the effects of the moderate use of alcohol..

The first speaker at the afternoon sessions was Mrs. Rose Beatty of the Girls' Industrial School in Delaware. She declared that the reason she has so many girls in her institution can be traced to delinquency brought about by a desire for things that the homes of the underprivileged classes could not afford their adolescent girls.

She was followed by David J. Weins of the bureau of attendance of the Cleveland public sscools. who stated that unless the schools of tomorrow adopt more sane attitudes toward curricula, the crime problem will increase. He declared there is more need for vocational training to prepare 80 per cent of the school population for some profitable occupation.

Harold H. Reinecke, special investigator of the United States Department of Justice, final speaker on the afternoon program in speaking before the group, traced the study of crime from the time that offenders are apprehended, and said that fully 18 per cent of all major crimes in the United States yearly are committed by persons under 21 years of age, and that more than 50 per cent of the criminals under 21 years of age are repeaters.

V. C. BUCKLEY TALKS AT FEDERATION MEET

World Traveler Gives Views of India, Europe Before Mansfield Women at Ohio Theater Friday Morning.

WORLD traveler and author, V. C. Buckley, warned his listeners yesterday morning when he spoke at the Ohio theater under the auspices of the Mansfield Federation of Women not to take their own country along when traveling. "You cannot possibly see a country properly if you spend most of the sight seeing time telling your guide about your home life," he explained.

Mrs E. J. Gilbert, president of the Federation, introduced the speaker, who was the last to appear here under the club's sponsorship this season. A luncheon followed at the Women's Club.

Buckley took the group first to India explaining that India has about 600 states each governed by a maharaja and it was on two of these states, Rajpipla and Mysore that he based the first part of his talk. As a guest of the Maharaja of Rajpipla whom he had met once or twice in England, he had the opportunity to see India through the eyes of those who live there.

Sees India.

He was met at the Bombey docks when he landed by an English speaking native who, equipped with tickets for the remainder of the journey, announced that he was to be his servant during his stay in India. By train to the border land of Rajpipla and there, much to his delight, Buckley was met by a private train and taken directly to the capital city. Here in the company of four other English guests Buckley spent much time in sight-seeing and in watching the maharaja and several of his cohorts stage a daily game of polo to the accompaniment of a 20 piece military band which gallantly attempted to play the latest western hits.

From Rajpipla Buckley was taken to Mysore where he stayed at the 60-room white marble guest "cottage" belonging to the Yuvaraja of Mysore whom he had never seen and did not see at all during his stay. Mysore is about the third largest state in India and its ruler has a private fortune estimated at $500,0000,000, and a fortune in jewels worth about $25,000,000. The capital of Mysore, Sludia, is one of the most beautifully electrically lighted cities in the world.

And Liechtenstein.

Abruptly the speaker brought his talk of India to a close and switched to Europe to tell of the principality of Lichtenstein, a tiny country nestled peacefully in the Alps. Liechtenstein is ten miles long and six miles wide, its capital Vaduz, has a population of 1,500 people, no railroad station, no theater and no taxes. The spot was a part of Germany until 1719 when it was bought by the Austrian family of Liechstein. During the World war it was under Austria but since has fallen under the protectorate of Switzerland, although it still has its own constitution. The Prince Liechtenstein, who owns the country, donates several thousand dollars a year for the upkeep of the government. All is peace and contentment in this paradise on the Rhine, according to Buckley, who expressed the wish, in conclusion, that all Europe could be like that.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Romantic Mood Flowers In Sheer Spring Formals

The importance of sheers for spring will continue this year if the early fashion notes are any indication. Fine cottons of both imported and domestic origin appear to be leading the evening fashion promenade. The dress shown on the left is of a novelty fabric made in the romantic mood. It is a clear chiffon organdie in primrose yellow with a gleaming lacquered patterning matching yellow. The material is draped and molded for this full-skirted dance frock for festive evenings. A dainty corsage ornament at the point of the V-shaped decolletage gives the contrast note. The redingote worn by the other model is in transparent black with a dainty leaf design in velvety pink chenille. It is worn over a slim sheath of a gown in pale pink. It is designed so that it may be worn as a wrap on balmy evenings and carries the romantic mood to the highest point by the addition of matching long mitts.

How Can Girl Keep Man From Drink?

By VIRGINIA LEE

How can a sweet little girl prevent a boy friend from drinking? How can a sweet wife solve the same problem which is just as important—and even more difficult to answer.

"Dear Miss Lee: Do you know of any way by which a girl can prevent a boy from drinking? There is a certain boy with whom I believe I am in love. I do not hesitate to tell you that he does not love me, however. This boy goes with fellows much older than he who drink. They urge him to drink and before they are finished he is drunk.

I am in love with this boy and hate to see him go the way he does, for really he is a very fine boy. I know just what the effects of alcohol are on the body and would like to stop him from suffering. I tried to tell him; but he doesn't believe it is so. I know the only way is to stop him from drinking, but I don't know how to go about it. Can you help me Miss Lee? It means a lot to me. I imagine there are a lot of girls who are faced with this problem

"PERPLEXED."

Yes, dear many girls are faced with this problem, and so are many mothers and wives. If I could give a sure and painless cure for excessive drinking I could make my name known from end to end of the world. Even girls and women are proving problems to many sweethearts, husbands and parents.

A man must find that he gets more satisfaction out of being sober than he does out of drinking before he decides to break himself of this habit. At present this youth feels big and important to drink with these older chaps. He doesn't want to appear a sissy and a flat tire. It is smart and up-to-date to drink, and to get drunk.

If he was very much in love with you you could do more about it. You could refuse to have anything to do with a man who drinks too much. If his job suffers from these excesses he might be persuaded that it wasn't quite so swanky to keep up with the boys. But as long as he is flattered by the companionship of these older boys and feels he is one of the big shots of the gang, I am afraid you cannot do much, my dear.

I would advise you to "fall out of love" with him, if you can manage it. Don't preach to him or plead with him or try to tell him what alcohol will do to him. He knows all that just as well as you do. He also knows how dreadful he feels the "morning after the night before," but he still gets a great deal of pleasure out of what seems to him his newly acquired "manliness." If he really has a strong and fine character, he will find after awhile that this procedure isn't as satisfying as it now seems, and "pull himself together." You and all the others who love him will have to pray that time will come soon.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have been going with a young man for two years and recently one of his boy friends has started to come to see him at my house almost every night. If we are not at home he comes the next night, and you can't get rid of him. I am tired of it and mentioned it to my friend. He said that as long as he wants him I'll have to stand for it. When his friends are around he forgets I am there. He never wants to please me any more. He is also the type you can't reason with. Should I give him up, or what do you advise?

"VIVE."

It is a very good thing for a girl to make a good deal of fuss over her boy friend's or husband's pals. Many a young wife has made the mistake of being cool to her husband's old friends and so has estranged them. It is bad business. Men need their pals just as a girl needs chums of her own sex. Neither should be cold to the other's friends without a very good excuse, such as immoral conduct, and maybe not then.

However, if this young man you go with is inconsiderate and neglectful of you when this boy is around, and as you seem to be conscious of his stubbornness, maybe you are getting tired of him and had better break the affair off. How would you feel about that?

FANCTS AND FANCIES

Questions About Vitamins.

We hear so much about getting the proper vitamins in our foods. But few people know what vitamins are. Or what happens if you do not get enough of them. Or how much you need per day. Or how you can get them. In Good Housekeeping you'll find all these and other questions about vitamins answered by Dr. Walter H. Eddy, director of the magazine's bureau. Here's what he says about Vitamin A:

Vitamin A is a fat soluble A. Carotene. Beta-carotene. Carotene is a yellow pigment formed in plants. When this pigment is eaten by human beings the liver converts it into active Vitamin A.

If you do not get enough Vitamin A you lose ability to resist infections. Colds last longer. Tooth enamel is not properly formed or maintained. Skins get dry and scaly and may lose sensitivity to touch. You lose ability to see clearly in a dim light, or to readjust your vision quickly after glare such as night automobile driving.

The amount of Vitamin A you need per day is at least 6,000 international units.

The way you can get it is to eat freely of butter and milk, of green vegetables and fruits and of yellow root vegetables. Eggs are also a good source of this vitamin. If you are in doubt about the adequacy, supplement your diet with fish-liver oils and concentrates.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

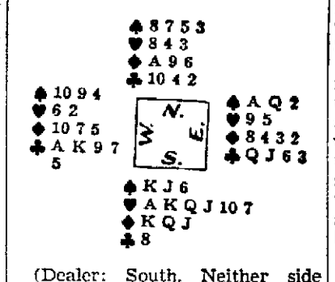
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO LEADS ESSENTIAL

With several finessing combinations, two leads toward them are essential. One lead will not develop their full possibilities. It pays to recognize these early in the play, so that you can stretch any possible points to make the valuable leads available.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Four hearts constituted the final contract at all tables in a recent duplicate on this deal. The South players opened the bidding with 2-Hearts, to which the response by North was 2-No Trump, then 3-Hearts by South and four by North.

The opening lead at all tables was the club K, followed by the A. This was ruffed by South and the result of the score depended upon which card was used for ruffing by South.

Where the 7 was used, the diamond A furnished the only entry to dummy to try the spade finesse, and consequently three tricks were won by the opponents. Where the 10 was played for ruffing, the second trick, two entries were provided in the dummy and as a result only one spade trick had to be given up.

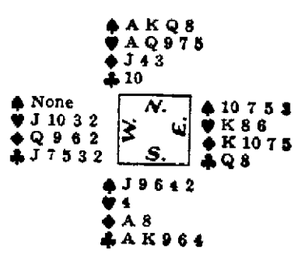
Monday's Problem.



Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 6-Spades after the lead of the diamond 2?

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 20.

Sunday's horoscope holds happy presage for mythical, religious and intellectual matters, with recognition and much gratification in such directions. It also holds promise of many romantic or affectional activities, with probably social functions and unusual merriment in connection with engagements, marriage or other festivities of a sentimental nature.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very pleasant and generally satisfactory year, with emphasis on the private relations. Friendship, courtship or a wedding may culminate in much happiness.

A child born on this day may have a fine and original mentality, being capable of serious thinking and creative aspirations, which may contribute to its high social or personal popularity and standing.

For Monday, March 21.

Monday's astrological forecast holds auguries of a very definite progress in the affairs, with an increase of prestige, power, favoritism or honors in employment or in the good graces of superiors or those in high places. There may also be gains from investments, property, insurance, trusts or other tangible assets.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may count on a year in which there may be definite stabilization of the affairs, with advancement in employment or in the favoritism of important personages. There may also be solid returns for labor, property, investments or possibly insurance or inheritance.

A child born on this day may be sound and solid in its ideas and qualities, attracting the confidence and support of elders and superiors. Its dependability and diligence may be amply rewarded with possessions, and it shouldn't be lacking in romantic proclivities or experiences.

Today's Recipe.

SPANISH POT ROAST — Cut slits in the pot roast and insert stuffed olives, pushing them into the meat so that they stay in place. Brown well in hot lard. Season with salt and pepper. Pour over the browned pot roast one cup canned tomatoes. Cover tightly and cook slowly until done, about three hours.

Light pruning of bush roses, means many flowers of small size and heavy pruning few flowers of larger size. Three to five stems left with two or three buds on a stem is called heavy pruning.

When roasting a chicken place with breast down in the baking pan for the first half hour of roasting. This allows the juices to flow into the breast, making it moist and tender.

THEATER

NOT even the annual Accademy award banquet could quench the impertinent humor of Charlie McCarthy. When Edward Bergen and Charlie came up to the speaker's stand to receive their special award, Bergen laid the dummy down on the table and Charlie was surrounded by statuettes yet to be handed out. "Oh, piped Charlie, "knicknacks!" And when Bergen received the small statute, Charlie looked at it disdainfully, and said: "It's darn small—and it don't even shine." Spencer Tracy, from his hospital bed called Freddie Bartholomew after he had received his award for the best piece of acting by any male player, and assured the youngster that the prize belonged to both of them, for without Freddie's fine support in "Captains Courageous," he could never have won it.

"Goldwyn Follies."

One of the smartest showmen in Hollywood, Sam Goldwyn, turns his producing ability to musical comedy, and as might be expected, does it in a big way. There are so many to bracket names in "Goldwyn Follies" that it isn't necessary to know anything else about the picture, in order to arouse your interest. Helen Jepson Akron girl who is a Metropolitan star, and Charles Kullamann, also of the "Met," make their camera debuts in the picture, as does Zorina the most sensational of the ballet dancers. Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, the Ritz Brothers and Ella Logan speak well for the comedy, while the major players are Adolphe Menjoue, Kenny Baker and Andrea Leeds who scored so heavily as the tragic actress in "Stage Door." The picture is in technicolor, and the music is by the late George Gershwin and Ira Gershwin. The picture opens with a midnight matinee tonight at the Ohio.

"Slight Case of Murder."

It doesn't sound like the title of a comedy, but the picture was made from the side splitting comedy of Damon Runyon and Howard Lindsay, which revolves around a beer baron who decides to go Social Register when real comes in and prohibition goes out. He continues to sell beer but never tastes his own stuff so can't even guess how terrible it is. There is a "Slight Case of Murder", when a nice young cop comes up on a quartet of gangsters who have killed each other, and in his excitement shoots them all over again. Edward G. Robinson plays Marco the beer baron; Jane Bryan is his attractive daughter, and Willard Parker is the cop who wins the ex-beer runners daughter. Allen Jenkins, Edward Brophy, Ruth Donnelly, John Litel and others in the cast. The picture is scheduled for the Madison the first three days of the week. Bradley Kincaid and his hillbillies are the stage attraction there today.

"3 Men on a Horse."

Mystery and hilarious comedy headline the Majestic bill tomorrow and Monday, with Boris Karloff, Marie Wilson and Regis Toomey in "The Invisible Menace," and the film version of the stage hit, "3 Men on A Horse," which has been shown here both as a stage show and screen production. It's the story, you may recall, of a quiet little fellow who made a living by writing poetry for greeting cards, but made a hobby of picking winning horses. He picked them so well that racketeers of the track heard of him and kidnaped him as the goose that laid golden eggs. But when they took him away from his poetry, they killed the goose. The cast is high percentage comedy—Joan Blondell, Frank McHugh, Guy Kibbee, Carol Hughes, Allen Jenkins, and Edgar "Slow Burn" Kennedy.

"You're a Sweetheart."

The tuneful, dancing romantic musical comedy, "You're A Sweetheart," which introduces Alice Faye and George Murphy as formidable rivals of the Astaire-Rogers dancing team, is the Ritz offering Sunday and Monday. The picture has been a hit everywhere for it is one of the rare film vehicles that combines a good story, good music, excellent dancing and likeable characters and players. George Murphy emerges as one of the best bets of the year. It has a back-stage theme with a "different" story. Ken Murray is a theatrical producer, and Charles Winninger is the gent from Oklahoma; Murphy poses as an Oklahoma millionaire and Miss Faye is the star of the show. Murray's Oswald is there, and Andy Devine, William Gargan, Frances Hunt and Frank Jenks are featured.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I DID NOT realize how heavily I had counted upon the truth of the flimsy tale the hotel manager had told me until Mary effectively punctured it.

Common sense had told me that the suave Mr. Miner had given me a farcical explanation of the drunken woman's call to Dicky the night before, and I really had been relieved when Mary had proffered the far more plausible theory that some discharged model, in a drunken fury, was responsible for the call. But it came to me now, devastatingly that secretly I had been hoping the manager's story was true, and that the drunken woman was a Mrs. Glaven, calling her husband also a resident of the hotel, and that a new night operator, confused by the simplicity of names, had put the call upon our suite wire.

Wipes Out Hope.

But Mary's cool announcement that she had "checked up on the manager's yarn, and it was out", followed by her account of the ingenious method of her "checking", had wiped out my secret hope that Dicky was not the object of the drunken woman's call.

For a second or two after she finished her account of her colloquy with the waiter, I stared at her unable to form a single comment upon her ingenuity and her resourcefulness, which, I knew, deserved praise.

Her disappointed face roused me. She is still a child in her subconscious desire to be commended for any creditable thing she has done, and I knew that she justifiably thought she had been adroit and ingenious in extracting the truth which she suspected was buried beneath the manager's camouflaged story.

"How very, very clever of you, Mary!" I said, stoutly relegating my secret disappointment to the remotest corner of my brain. "And I know you must have managed it so the waiter didn't suspect your real motive in questioning him"

No Suspicion.

Mary's face glowed with gratification mingled with a touch of the mischief which is never far from her spirit.

"Not a single suspicion did the old dear have," she said. "I'll wager my last year's ear muffs on that. If he'd been the broth of a boy he must have been once, I'm afraid he would have been onto me, but he's forgotten everything except how to serve food. That's become so much a part of him that I think he could wait on table correctly if he were asleep—or even dead."

"And he said that he never had heard of anybody named Glavan staying here?" I queried, feeling that I needed the time spent in putting the wholly unnecessary question. I was finding it unexpectedly difficult to pull myself together sufficiently for coherent conversation with my husband's winsome niece, who is so dear to me.

"He was very explicit on that point," Mary said "Indeed, the old fellow's air seemed to infer that Glavan was not an aristocratic name and that it was just as well the sacred halls of the Lansfield had never been contaminated with his plebian presence. He also subtly insinuated that if such a person ever had registered here, he himself would have felt it his duty to ease him out as gently and unobtrusively as possible."

Mirth was the emotion farthest from me, but I could not resist Mary's infectious foolery, and I laughed at her nonsense and merriment, which I was sure she had deliberately—and very cleverly—schemed to elicit.

But the next instant I was sobered again by the realization that this revelation of hers meant—a question tore from my lips without my meaning to utter it.

"Mary!" I stammered, "doesn't this mean that your uncle must have known about the call of that woman?"

Make-up Hints For Redheads

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

RED-HEADS are the lucky girls of our time. They are the envy of their blond and brunet sisters. The very color of their hair denotes warmth and excitement, and most of the ladies blessed with flaming tresses seem to have romance and adventure always around them.

But into every life some rain must fall, and they have a harder time with their makeup than either the dark girls or the light girls. They have to be careful about the colors they select in clothes Otherwise, they have gotten the breaks.

This department has decided to come to the aid of the red-headed group so here are some helpful hints that ought to make your selection of the proper colors in cosmetics a cinch.

Never go in for a dull makeup or any of the yellow tones They clash and conflict with the color pigment of your skin and do not suit your personality. If you are a light red-head, and by that we mean light red hair, a fair skin and blue eyes, your makeup chart will differ from that of the dark red-head.

Your complexion tone demands a light shade of face powder, a vivid lipstick and blond or coral cheek rouge. Use a blue or green eye shadow and a dark brown eyebrow pencil Dark brown or black mascara should always be used. A coral shade of nail polish is very effective with your coloring. The colors suited to you are browns, greens, yellow-greens and any of the rust tones. Black and white will also set off your style of beauty very flatteringly.

Becoming to Dark Red-Head.

The dark red-head with dark red hair, ivory skin and brown eyes takes the following makeup: A lotus or light rachel powder, cherry red rouge and lipstick are best for you. Use a dark brown eyebrow pencil, brown eye shadow and dark brown mascara. The browns will catch up the hints of brown in your hair and deepen the rich velvety beauty of your eyes. Use a cherry red fingernail polish to match your lipstick. If you are a red-head with this coloring you have a wider choice in the colors of your dresses and hats, than your lighter sister. But you should learn to turn away from reds, yellows and oranges. When wearing black try to have a white collar or border in that neckline. This touch of white will emphasize the beauty of your titian hair and ivory skin.

Properly made up, you red-heads will go far and be a real danger signal to young men who want to remain single.

Leftover onions and cabbage should never be put away in the refrigerator unless they are placed in a tightly covered dish.

CHAPTER XXII

Then from the car came Carmen, her own gun blazing, like her eyes.

She raced to Murray's side, took deliberate aim at Vasquez and fired.

Vasquez's hat lifted from his head and sailed away.

"Take it, Murray!" the girl cried, thrusting the small gun into his hand.

Murray put an arm around her, took the gun, lokoed at it and then threw it from him.

"All right, Vasquez," he said. "Come and get me. But leave the girl alone, understand. Otherwise, you're going to be very sorry for yourself—some time."

"Damn the girl," said Vasquez, coming forward. "I want you. Put him in the car, Gregorio." He turned his eyes upon the girl.

"After this, I'll leave you alone, as this American asks," Red Vasquez said viciously to Carmen, "but you've got—this—coming," and he slapped her across the face before Murray could jerk her out of the way.

Scarcely had the man's hand touched the girl's face when Murray, having belatedly sensed Vasquez's intention, brought into use the haymaker that he had had no opportunity to use on his jailers. It landed on Vasquez's jaw, and with a moan, that one swayed, toppled and fell.

That was all Murray had time to do. Gregorio seized him and ran him to the car. Then returned and carried his chief to the machine. Juan had dragged his broken leg to the machine, and Gregorio helped him in. Avila was dead; they left him where he lay.

Then Gregorio walked over to Carmen.

"I think you'd better come along," he said, roughly. "You've done enough for one day. I think the chief will like to talk to you, when he wakes up."

"You are right, Gregorio," came Vasquez's voice now. Bring her along."

So Carmen was forced into the crowded car, beside Murray.

As the car turned and started back to the old ranch-house, Murray touched Carmen's hands with his own. Just a touch, but it said more than words could say.

And Carmen looked deep into his eyes.

What she read there seemed to please her.

Red Vasquez was vicious.

His jaw hurt and his head ached from the blow Murray had given him.

Consequently it was with little courtesy that he herded the American and Carmen into a room of the ranch-house which was furnished with a small pine table and a few wobbly straight-backed chairs. There were two doors, one opening onto a hallway, the other outside the house.

"Sit down, you two," he growled, "and listen to what I have to say to you."

As they obeyed, he turned his head to speak to Gregorio, who was standing at the door leading to the yard.

"Stand guard outside, Gregorio," he ordered. "Where's your pistol? All right."

Then he looked at the open door behind him. Through it he could see one of his men leaning against the wall of the hallway. Again he faced Murray, across the table.

"You," he growled, "are probably wondering why you are still alive, huh? Well, I am going to tell you, Gringo. Vasquez does not take two blows without avenging himself. Some day perhaps I shall kill you. But for the present, there is something I desire more than revenge."

"Money?" snapped Murray. "You'll get none from me. Nor for my ransom. Eat that."

"Money, yes," said Vasquez, glowering at him with red eyes from beneath redder eyebrows. But not the way you think. Listen. You came barging into Mexico like that silly English hero I have read about somewhere. Lochinvar, that's it. You come barging in like young Lochinvar to discover a girl named Sue Castle."

Murray glanced at Carmen, who tightened her lips, but did not return Murray's glance.

"Oh, you thought I did not know that, huh?" Vasquez continued. "Not only have I known that, but I have known a lot more. For instance, that this Sue Castele is the heiress of her father, who died recently, leaving her a half interest in a very valuable gold mine. And I know also—which is most important—that you have not been able to discover this girl you seek. You think that either Dolores or this girl here, is Miss Castle. But—" He paused to effect a painful grin. "But I know that which you don't know, Gringo."

"That," said Murray, "is interesting. If true."

Again he looked at Carmen; and again the girl evaded his look, her eyes fastened upon Vasquez.

"And so I have this day married the so-called Dolores, whom I know to be the girl you have been seeking, Sue Castle," Vasquez continued.

"You—have—what?" demanded Carmen, eyes wide.

Vasquez took from his pocket a folded paper. Like a child he laid it upon the table. Pointed to the names with his big forefinger.

"This is our marriage certificate," he said.

"But—but—" began Carmen. "Did you force Dolores into this marriage, you beast?"

"Forced? Ah, senorita, you misjudged me. Dolores was willing. Quite willing. After she had considered the matter a moment."

"I understand," said Carmen, looking away. "The old frame-up still works. Well . . ."

"Vasquez," said Murray, interrupting, "if you have the nerve of a louse, you will put that gun away and go with me into the yard, where I will earnestly try to kill you with my bare hands. You don't deserve to be shot. You ought to be strangled like a mad dog."

"However, Gringo," replied Vasquez, "I shall neither be shot nor strangled. But I am much afraid that you—unless you control yourself and prove amenable to reason—will suffer one or the other of those ends. Or perhaps a knife."

"Amenable?" questioned Murray. "What do you mean, amenable, you swine?"

"I mean this, Gringo," Vasquez told him. "My wife now owns a half interest in a gold mine. Unfortunately that gold mine is north of the Line. But you and your father own the other half of it. I expect you to see to it that my wife's share is immediately disposed of and the money paid over to me. Perhaps you and your father will like to buy it, eh?"

"I'll see you in hell first," snapped Murray. "If you have forced a marriage with Miss Castle, through some dirty frame-up, I'll spend the rest of my life getting her out of your filthy hands. And not a nickel do you get out of that mine."

For a long moment Vasquez glared at the American. And Murray returned the glare, both ignoring the girl who sat between them.

"So," growled Vasquez at last. "That's the way you feel about it, huh? Well, let me tell you something more then, Gringo. Two things. First, if you take that course you will make it extremely unpleasant for the daughter of your old friend Thomas Castle, deceased. Very unpleasant." He laughed, and his laughter was a threat that shook Murray. "In fact, I am afraid that I should shortly be left a widower. But don't forget . . . What?" His evil face flushed.

"Nothing," said Murray, who, with his lips, had, thrown one silent Spanish word at Vasquez. A fighting word that no woman may hear. "Only a beginning."

"Besides which, Gringo, until I get the money for the mine, you will be my guest. And I am afraid that you will not enjoy it. Hitherto I have been very considerate. But from now on, you are going to a place which will not be so comfortable. A place far up in the mountains, where nobody can possibly find you. So you perceive that if you have any consideration for your own welfare, and that of the American girl who is my wife, you will become reasonable."

For a space the two men stared at each other Vasquez's face wore a triumphant grin. Murray's was set and white. Vasquez had him. Had him in a vise. Not on his own account, but on Sue Castle's. For a moment he wondered if this story of Vasquez's marriage to Dolores was a lie. How had Vasquez found out which girl was Sue Castle? But he realized that Vasquez had spies everywhere. That he had known both these girls for a considerable time. That both were "friends" of him and his gang, through the use of frame-ups He could not be mistaken.

"I'll make a deal with you, Vasquez," Murray said, after a little.

"You've heard what I want," replied the Mexican.

"Nevertheless, listen. I'll make this agreement. My father and I will buy Miss Castle's half of the mine. I'll turn the money over to you. On one condition: that you thereupon permit Miss Castle—the Senora Vasquez—to return to the United States and have her marriage annulled . . . and that in the meantime you stay away from her. The matter can be arranged in twenty-four hours or less. And you may hold me as hostage until it is arranged."

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Perhaps the man you see returning home at daylight acting as if he had been thrown out of a night club is an amateur astronomer.

Even professional astronomers don't escape misinterpretations. Charles H. Smiley, Brown university astronomer, tells a story about last June's eclipse in Peru in the Telescope, Harvard's scientific journal.

He and two other Rhode Islanders, Harry A. MacKnight and Donald S. Reed, made a Schmidt camera for the eclipse. Last-minute work on the lens kept Dr. Smiley up several nights just before he sailed from Los Angeles for Peru.

He spent the first few days out relaxed in a deck chair. He heard an elderly lady say as she passed him:

"What a pity that people should come aboard in an intoxicated condition and not sober up for a week."

Later she learned that Dr. Smiley was a teetotaler.

Still later came the worst. Dr. Smiley received a radiogram from his scientific colleagues, which a foreign passenger read over the professor's shoulder.

"The man," says Dr. Smiley, "got the wrong impression. He did not read English, but he had seen American movies, and the radiogram read:

"'Gang wishes you success MacKnight'."

HEN LAYS TWO EGGS IN ONE

Leghorn Produces Double Yolks Every 2nd Day.

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Every second day, regularly as the clock, the three-year-old Leghorn hen of Louis Buck lays an egg with a double yolk.

That's just in the spring, however. When summer comes she'll start laying regular eggs. At least, that's the way it has been in the past.

The double eggs are six and a half inches around, in one direction, and eight inches in the other and they weigh a quarter of a pound.

The hen is the only one in a flock of 30 to produce such eggs.

SCARES THIEVES

Cowbell Attached to Auto Warns Farmer of Burglars.

VANCOUVER, B. C. —(INS)— A cowbell rang in a Vancouver block and J. L. Smith dashed for a phone and called police. Three men were attempting to steal the spare tire from his car. Smith explained that when they tried to remove the tire a cowbell rang in his house. He had improvised the burglar alarm for just such a purpose. But the thieves escaped.

Homesick Girl Sets Orphanage On Fire Twice

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France—(INS)—Lonesome for her mother, a seven-year-old girl twice set fire to the Providence Orphanage near here in the hope the buildings would be destroyed and she would be sent home.

Two fires within several days looked suspicious to the authorities and they investigated. After lengthy questioning of their charges, a little girl confessed she started both blazes.

Lonely and bored with life at the institution, she decided that if the buildings were burned down she would have to be sent home to her mother. So she stole matches from the chapel during services and while the rest of the children were playing made her way to the cellars where she lighted piles of paper.

Neither fire caused serious damage and no action will be taken against the child.

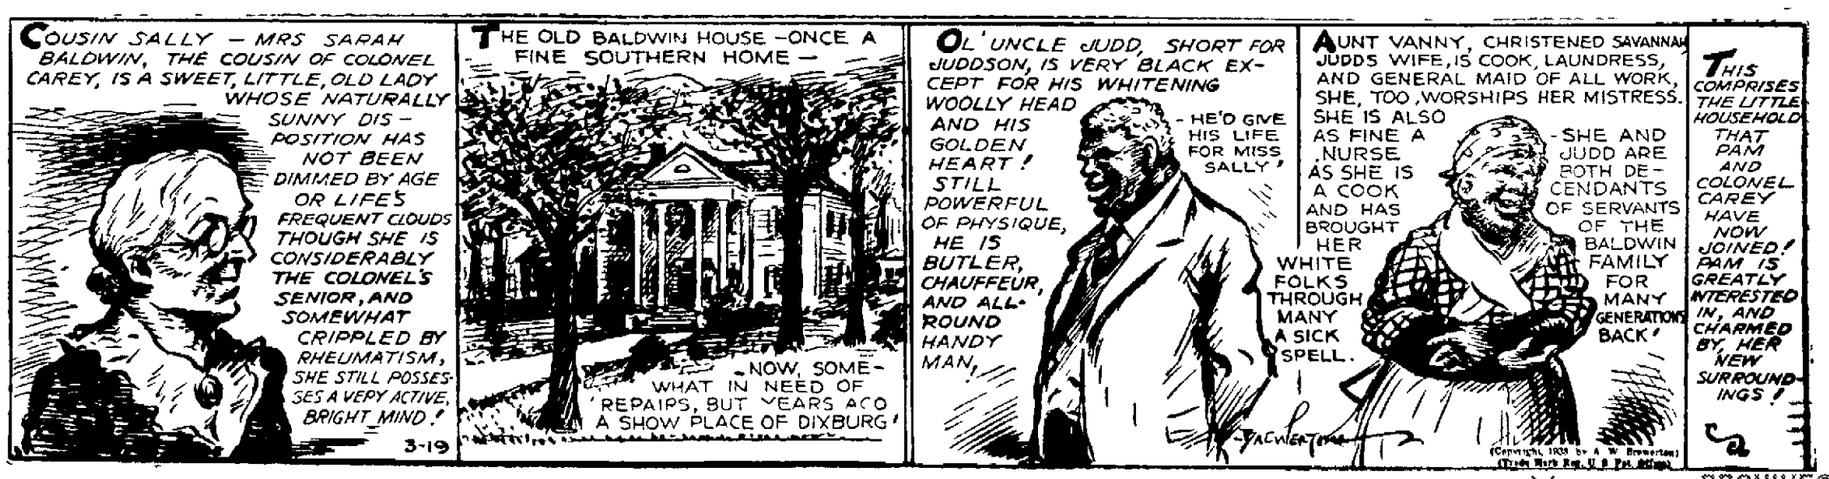
PAM—The Baldwin Household! By A. W. Brewerton



COUSIN SALLY — MRS SARAH BALDWIN, THE COUSIN OF COLONEL CAREY, IS A SWEET, LITTLE, OLD LADY WHOSE NATURALLY SUNNY DISPOSITION HAS NOT BEEN DIMMED BY AGE OR LIFE'S FREQUENT CLOUDS THOUGH SHE IS CONSIDERABLY THE COLONEL'S SENIOR, AND SOMEWHAT CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATISM, SHE STILL POSSESSES A VERY ACTIVE, BRIGHT MIND!

THE OLD BALDWIN HOUSE—ONCE A FINE SOUTHERN HOME—
—NOW, SOMEWHAT IN NEED OF REPAIRS, BUT YEARS AGO A SHOW PLACE OF DIXBURG!
OL' UNCLE JUDD, SHORT FOR JUDDSON, IS VERY BLACK EXCEPT FOR HIS WHITENING WOOLLY HEAD AND HIS GOLDEN HEART! STILL POWERFUL OF PHYSIQUE, HE IS BUTLER, CHAUFFEUR, AND ALL-ROUND HANDY MAN, —HE'D GIVE HIS LIFE FOR MISS SALLY!
AUNT VANNY, CHRISTENED SAVANNAH JUDDS WIFE, IS COOK, LAUNDRESS, AND GENERAL MAID OF ALL WORK, SHE, TOO, WORSHIPS HER MISTRESS. SHE IS ALSO AS FINE A NURSE AS SHE IS A COOK AND HAS BROUGHT HER WHITE FOLKS THROUGH MANY A SICK SPELL.
—SHE AND JUDD ARE BOTH DESCENDANTS OF SERVANTS OF THE BALDWIN FAMILY FOR MANY GENERATIONS BACK!
THIS COMPRISES THE LITTLE HOUSEHOLD THAT PAM AND COLONEL CAREY HAVE NOW JOINED! PAM IS GREATLY INTERESTED IN, AND CHARMED BY, HER NEW SURROUNDINGS!

GAINS WIDELY DISTRIBUTED IN ACTIVE OPENING

Market Sentiment Spurred by Lithuania's Acceptance of Poland's Ultimatum.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Recoveries running to a point or more were distributed widely in today's early stock market proceedings.

At a fairly active start gainers included U. S. Steel, Republic, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott. American Can, American Telephone, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, General Motors and Montgomery Ward.

Boardroom sentiment took a turn for the better before the opening as Lithuania accepted Poland's ultimatum and chances of hostilities lessened.

Holders of steels considered trade predictions that producing areas throughout the middle west probably would experience further improvement in ingot output over coming weeks but it was believed likely the expansion would be of less than seasonal proportions.

In the matter of building material shares, lower costs in this field revived hopes of a substantial pickup in home construction activities.

EUROPE GETS A 'BREATHER'

Halt Seen, Temporarily at Least, in Swiftly Changing Territory, Influence.

tire continent is going to abandon itself to the Nazis and their allies. Yet the problem now is:

Where shall the democracies call a halt?

Czechoslovakia's decision to admit Nazis into its federal and local governments means, in the opinion of all who know Nazi methods, that they will speedily have complete control.

Germany and Austria were prime examples of that. Once Nazis are admitted to the government they proceed with speed, determination and a ruthless political efficiency which wins them mastery before their opponents can draw a breath.

Lithuania's capitulation to the Polish ultimatum means that Poland and Germany have accomplished their joint intention to drive out the Soviet Russians from an influential position in this Baltic state. It is important from a military and strategic standpoint for both Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Marshal Rydz-Smigly of Poland.

On the surface it appears that Lithuania yielded only to relatively reasonable demands for re-establishment of neighborly relations with Poland. But actually tiny Lithaunia knows this is the beginning of the end of her national independence.

Sooner or later Germany will get Memel and Poland the rest of Lithuania. Then with Czechoslovakia also tucked into the German orbit there will be a solid anti-soviet bloc cutting off Rusisa from the rest of Europe.

This is Hitler's major aim, secondary only to that of uniting all German-speaking peoples.

With Czechoslovakia's 3,000,000 Germans, Hitler may soon be able to announce the population of greater Germany as 78,000,000, leaving only 2,000,000 Swiss to complete the amalgamation with an odd couple of million in Hungary and the Balkans.

Switzerland is now profoundly anxious. Swiss Germans are the least willing of all Germans in Europe to give up their independence for life in the third reich.

Runaway Horses Kill 57-Year-Old Holmes Farmer

MILLERSBURG — Dragged nearly 100 feet by runaway team of horses, Carl Mishler, 57, of Winesburg, east of here, was instantly killed Friday afternoon on the Mt. Hope road.

Witnesses said Mishler became entangled in the reins and was thrown to the pavement and dragged under the wagon, when the team became frightened. He suffered a fractured skull.

Born in Switzerland, Feb. 28, 1881, he came to America when a boy and spent the greater part of his life in this community. Surviving are his wife, Ida; four sons, Carl, jr., Frederick, Harold and Otmar, and a daughter, Rose Marie, all at home; a sister, Mrs. Christ Allenbach of Medina, and two brothers and sisters in Switzerland.

The body was removed to the Des Voignes funeral home at Mt. Eaton and will remain there until Monday. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Winesburg Evangelical church with Rev. Waldo Berlekamp of Strausburg, officiating. Burial will be in Winesburg.

ATTEND TIFFIN REUNION

Four members of Mansfield Council No. 94, R. & S. M., represented the council last night at the annual reunion and inspection of Clinton council No. 47 at Tiffin. Attending from Mansfield were Harry V. Henness, master, John Weil, recorder, Carl A. Wolfarth, principal conductor of work, and E. Ray Jenkins.

$65,000 WORK PROGRAM OK'D

City Council Agrees on Relief Projects, Defers Action On Bond Issue.

nances, the question would have to be placed before the voters, but added that he "didn't think it should be decided on at this time."

He explained that a bond issue approved by the voters might produce funds within 90 days after the election while a levy added to the tax duplicate would not produce funds for at least another year.

The cost of a special election was discussed with the finance committee finally agreeing to get figures on the matter from the board of elections before Tuesday night's special session.

Council agreed to approve Kelley's suggestion that a $4,000 appropriation be made to the relief fund from the unappropriated water works funds to meet immediate payment of a part of the current food bills.

While council questioned the amount the city would receive from monthly state allocations for administering relief, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today that the division of the funds had been made by county commissioners yesterday on the basis of the various sub-divisions February relief costs.

Of the $5,529, he said Mansfield will receive $3,716.67, of which $1,296 is earmarked for administrative purposes at relief headquarters. Madison township was allotted $1,037, Shelby $475, Worthington township $100, and Jefferson, Cass, Troy and Plymouth township $50 each.

With the financing problem deferred, Mayor Claude M. Hunter called council's attention to the work relief question that had been presented to him yesterday by WPA officials from Columbus.

250 Face Loss of Jobs.

He explained that he had been informed by the officials that unless provisions were made to release funds for additional projects already approved, approximately 250 WPA laborers would be faced with the loss of their jobs Tuesday.

He pointed out that should the men be taken off the WPA rolls because of the lack of work, the federal agency would not certify them for work again until June 30, thereby adding additional families to the already bulging relief load.

He suggested that some consideration be given to the proposed water project for Woodland with the expenditure of $75,000 as a means of providing employment.

C. N. Schultz, chairman of council's water committee, explained that the $75,000 project could not be undertaken at the present time without plunging the city further in debt by mortgaging the water department beyond reasonable limits.

His suggestion that $10,000 be taken from the unappropriated waterworks funds to proceed with a part of the city-wide extension program met with the approval of the group.

The water improvements drafted by the committee call for the construction of additional water mains on six different streets, which will include Park avenue west from West Park boulevard to Linden road and Pinecrest and Hoffman street at the cost of $5,500; Lincoln avenue from South Diamond street to the north, $1,092; Fifth avenue, Orange street to Grace, $1,000; Crescent road from Davis to Shepard road, $1,000; Columbia avenue, from Spruce-Distel avenue to Glessner avenue, $1,200, and an alley from Clifton to State street to tie in a dead end line at the cost of $350.

Along with the construction work on West Fourth street, the committee agreed at the same time to lay a 6-inch main from Penn avenue to Washington street at the cost of $1,000.

$33,000 for Sidewalks.

Anticipated to employ at least 50 men throughout the summer, council called for the renewal of the sidewalk repair program which involves the expenditure of $33,588 that was carried on a part of last year. They also set up the job of sidewalk inspector at a salary of $125 per month with the inspector to furnish his own transportation.

A price of 14 cents per square foot for five-inch deep concrete walks was agreed upon.

The renewal of the city-wide curb and gutter replacement project, totaling $18,929, started last summer by WPA was approved to employ additional men.

The project calls for the replacement of curbs and gutters on eight city streets including, Myers avenue, Louise avenue, Parkway avenue, Rae avenue, Dawson avenue, Mansfield avenue, Glessner and Second avenue.

For the release of another construction job, council asked City Solicitor Marion D. Ward to prepare the necessary legislation appropriating an additional $400 for the widening of Glessner avenue at the hospital. The project already approved by WPA, with $1,100 as the city's share, calls for setting back the curb on the south side of the street 10 feet along the hospital frontage.

LITHUANIA BOWS TO POLAND, WAR THREATS END

have repercussions which the Poles did not anticipate.

Prepare' To Act.

Nazi spokesmen in Berlin declared yesterday Germany would march into Memel, formerly a part of East Prussia but since the World war a part of Lithuania, the moment Poland's military machine crossed the Lithuanian border.

In other quarters in Berlin it was asserted Germany had withdrawn her objections to Polish action in Lithuania as a result of Polish acquiescence to a possible annexation by Germany of the free city of Danzig.

(Danzig, formerly a part of Germany, is nominally under protection of the league of nations, but is now ruled by a Danzig Nazi party, sympathetic to Adolf Hitler.)

Poland's army is 13 times the size of little Lithuania's and numbering well over a million.

The current dispute was brought to a head by the killing of a Polish border guard March 11.

Poland delivered an ultimatum Thursday with a 48-hour time limit attached. Among demands were renunciation of Wilno, which Poland took in 1920, as the capital of Lithuania.

There has been no direct diplomatic relationship between the two countries since 1920.

The situation drew the attention of all Europe.

Germany was interested in the Memel and Danzig angles; Soviet Russia had a friendly interest in Lithuania as a buffer to Germanic and Polish aspirations; France as a friendly ally of Poland sought to exert a mollifying influence; Britain played the same role, though not as a Polish ally.

Need 4 More Years, Hitler Tells Nazis.

BERLIN —(AP)— Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler wants four more years of power "to complete the tasks ahead in the greater reich."

Another step toward consolidation of Austria into the Nazi domain was taken yesterday when the old reichstag was dissolved and new legislative elections were called for April 10. The new reichstag will be the first to represent the greater Germany.

Hitler announced that all of Germany, including Austria, would vote at the same time on union of Austria with Germany. A plebiscite already had been called in Austria for April 10.

The reichstag heard Hitler, in blunt terms, reiterate his warning against infrigement on the rights of German minorities in other countries.

His threat to use force, as he did in Austria, was taken as a veiled thrust at Czechoslovakia, with 3,500,000 restless Germans inside its borders and half surrounded by Nazi territory.

Hitler took occasion to thank Premier Benito Mussolini for approving the Austrian annexation.

The "word of the German nation" was pledged as security that Italy's frontiers would remain inviolate.

Loyalists Split on Civil War Stand.

BARCELONA—(U.P.)—It as reported today that a group within the Spanish loyalist cabinet favored ending the civil war at "almost any price." Another group, it was said, wanted to carry it on to the "bitter end."

The cabinet met while an estimated half million persons fled the loyalist capital, subjected to three consecutive days of frightful bombings from the air, to the comparative safety of the surrounding mountains.

The flight involved more than one-fourth of the city's population.

Groups began leaving Wednesday after the first relays of insurgent bombing planes had blasted the city.

A constant stream of homeless and panic-stricken families filled the boulevards, en route to the outskirts and the mountains.

Through the night and into today the exodus continued.

When the next assault would come no one knew.

The ministry of defense announced that there had been seven raids between 9 p. m. Thursday and 9 p. m. last night. Five raids were carried out by Italian bombers, the ministry said; the others by German junkers.

AGREE TO JOIN IN HOUSING SURVEY

City, County Officials Decide On Further Study of Slum Clearance Plan, However.

Although definite action was delayed yesterday to permit further study of the proposed federal housing slum clearance project in Mansfield, city and county officials virtually agreed to join in sponsoring a survey of housing needs in the city.

Details of the program were outlined yesterday afternoon by H. J. Halper, Akron, federal housing commission member for Ohio, at a meeting of city and county officials at the courthouse.

Halper urged that a $100 fund be appropriated to start the survey necessary in setting up a housing commission here to request a share of a $65,000,000 federal housing allocation for Ohio.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, Probate Judge C. J. Anderson and county commissioners are expected to meet early next week to name a five-member commission which will submit the proposal to federal housing authorities at Columbus.

The local board would first study the housing conditions in Mansfield to determine where the most fire hazards and poor sanitation conditions exist.

Should the plan be approved by federal housing authorities at Columbus, the Mansfield board would go to Washington to seek a federal loan for razing old buildings in condemned areas in the city and constructing new projects.

HALTS WPA JOBS

Lack of Funds Puts 130 Out Of Work at Bellville.

Work on the $80,000 WPA sewer project at Bellville, which is nearing completion, was reported discontinued today because of lack of funds. Between 130 and 150 men are employed on the project, the major WPA job in the county at this time.

Mayor T. R. Zeigler of Bellville, said the village had only $17 left in a fund which has provided materials for the sewer work, while $4,000 is needed to complete the project. The village raised $22,000 last year through a bond issue to sponsor the sewer work.

While county WPA oficials could not be reached today to confirm the report, Mayor Zeigler said he had heard that federal funds for the project also are exhausted and the project faces abandonment unless more money is raised.

The work, which was started last April, would be completed in two months if operations could be continued, Mayor Zeigler said.

MOTHER HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Suffers Head, Face Lacerations; Baby, Husband Escape Injury.

Mrs. Paul Skelton, 27, of 187 West Fourth street, was treated at General hospital last night for face and head lacerations suffered in an automobile accident near Lexington in which Skelton and the couple's 18-month-old daughter escaped injury. The injured woman was removed to her home.

Skelton's car struck the rear of an automobile driven by Walter H. Johnson, Springfield, O., when Johnson slowed up at a narrow bridge, deputy sheriffs said. Johnson and David Wasson, of Clarence, N. Y., a hitch-hiker who was riding with the Skeltons, were not hurt.

The accident occurred about 8:30 p. m. on route 42 three miles west of Lexington. Both cars were headed toward Mt. Gilead.

Cast On One Side, Incision On Other, Ondov Not Comfy

Word from Mansfield General hospital today reports Michael Ondov as "general condition good, but uncomfortable."

The 24-year-old student of Hamma Divinity school, Wittenberg, is still in the cast which has encased him for four months, and because of it finds it extremely uncomfortable and painful to lie on his stomach, and is unable to lie on his back for more than a few hours because of the incision along his back bone.

Ondov was considerably cheered yesterday by a visit from Rex Long, Loudonville, who is able to be about on two canes following an operation almost identical with Ondov's. Long became paralyzed last June as the result of a fall from a building. His operation and recovery served as inspiration for Ondov during his months of paralysis at General hospital. The same Columbus surgeon performed both operations.

The fund to aid Ondov was approximately $600 today. Hi-Y boys raised $10 last night with their box social at the Y. M. C. A. Further contributions were expected to be given in four Lutheran churches tomorrow, First Lutheran, St. Paul, St. Mark's and St. Matthews. All of them gave their last Sunday's collections to the Ondov fund.

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THERE'S irony in the fact that Adolf Hitler, a son of Austria, should be chosen by fate to write the last chapter in the history of the empire of the double eagle," the Milwaukee Journal said this week.

The final chapter yes, but a tag-end, an epilogue to a thousand years of storm, internal disintegration, conquest and humiliations, which began somewhere about the year 900 when Austria was created as a sort of military outpost for Germany, and ended with the World war when the dual empire of Austria-Hungary was cut into bits and made into new nations.

It wasn't Adolf Hitler who put an end to Austria the other day with his bloodless coup; it was the shot at Sarajevo on June 28, 1914, that brought death to the empire of the double eagle. And a month later, on July 28, the monarchy, under the shaking hand of poor old defeated Franz Josef, wrote its own "finis" when it declared war on Servia, and a few days later on Russia.

Austria-Hungary had been like a shaky old mansion before the World war, its brilliant outer front merely a facade which hid poverty and a complete lack of national solidarity, tolerated by the other nations of Europe only because of its strategic geographical advantages which made it too precious for any one nation to dare to gobble it up. It is the pathway to the eastern European states and to Asia.

GERMANY, France and Italy have always used Austria as a sort of reserve supply on which to nibble whenever they became conquest-hungry.

And now, in this year of 1938 a little chap who was born of humble parents in Austria, finishes up the pilfering, actually completing the job started by Frederick the Great of Germany in 1740; picking up the crumbs left after the World war.

Poor picking are these crumbs, too. A territory no larger than the state of Maine and with only 6,000,000 conquered subjects—subjects so mixed as to nationality, characteristics and political inclinations that they can be welded together only by constant military vigil.

It isn't the taking of little Austria that has the nations of Europe up in the air higher than a kite—it's the manner in which it was done. The same impudent, autocratic manner in which Italy took Ethiopia, Japan took Manchuokuo.

There is an uneasy feeling, conviction rather, that Reichsfuehrer Hitler isn't through "taking," and that before long—weeks, months, or perhaps a year or two—he will reach out to take some country which refuses to be "took."

It is only a question of which country will be the next Sarajevo, the fuse to light another world war.

* * *

THE chances are that when Adolf was a little boy, all of his bedtime stories were about Napoleon Bonaparte, the little feller who came out of Corsica to play hell with the map of Europe and to set himself up as Emperor of more than half of the nations.

But the narrators probably never got to the part about Waterloo and the Great Big Bad Wolf of Wellington. Which is a pity.

SPEAKING of the bad wolf reminds us of the bad witch in "Snow White" to which a few mothers objected as being too terrible for a sensitive child to see.

"Sensitive" children of today are so familiar with pictures of gangsters shooting down their victims, cold-blooded killings, wrecks, and blood-curdling crime stories over the radio, that the witch in Walt Disney's "Snow White" was just meat for their little minds. In fact, the bad old thing worried adults a lot more than she did the kids, if I know my audience reactions.

ONE OF THE MOST interesting political comments this week is in the Saturday Evening Post which names Jim Farley as one for whom there is underway one of the most formidable of the presidential "booms."

"Only the naive will be surprised to learn that Farley is not a New Dealer, and only the naive will underestimate the power behind the Farley boom. He intends to have the nomination with or without the Roosevelt blessing. If need be, he is satisfied that he can stop Mr. Roosevelt from a third term," the editorial writer opines.

Last summer when we interviewed Farley in Mansfield, we guessed he was sick to death of New Dealism and particularly his job of trying to popularize it. But Jim Farley, smart as he is (and we've always thought he had more brains than all the New Dealers put together) can't shake the dust of the present administration off his feet so easily. Not without repudiating all that he has stood for—publicly—in the past five years, and to do that places him in the unfavorable light of a turn-coat.

And a turn-coat is kept so darn busy explaining that he never has time to talk business.

JURY CONVICTS IN MURDER OF HORNBECK GIRL

Judge Orders 'Life Sentence Without Pardon' as Panel Reports After 8 Hours.

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA—A life term in Ohio penitentiary was before Edward Hensley, 22, colored, today for the assault-slaying last Oct. 18 of Louise Hornbeck, comely dentists's aide of nearby Grafton.

After deliberating eight hours, a common pleas court jury of eight women and four men convicted the former Grafton prison farm trusty last night of first degree murder and recommended mercy.

Judge Guy B. Findley sentenced the defendant to "life imprisonment without pardon."

Thus authorities closed the records on one of Lorain county's most baffling crimes, investigation of which resulted in "confessions" from three youths.

First to 'Confess.'

A transient seized in Michigan was the first to "confess," but officials determined that his story was fabricated.

A young Homestead, Pa., hitchhiker subsequently "confessed" and was indicted by a grand jury, but a three-judge court found him insane after his trial had opened. He was sent to Lima State hospital.

Hensley, questioned concerning an attempted criminal attack upon another Grafton girl, made a confession while testifying in his own defense, asserting he made the statement because "they threatened to throw me to the mob."

Defense Attorney D. F. Rendinell declared in his final argument to the jury that the former Youngstown resident was an "innocent victim of the most astonishing frame-up ever perpetrated in Lorain county."

Rendinell claimed the prosecution failed to place Hensley at or near the scene of the crime, and old apple orchard within a stone's throw of Miss Hornbeck's home.

"Never in the history of this county has any prisoner been treated with more consideration," said Assistant Prosecutor William G. Wickens in reply to Rendinell's assertion that Hensley had been mistreated.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield sport fans will hear a familiar voice if they tune their sets for the NBC broadcast to be relayed by WHK, Cleveland, at 11:30 p. m. Wednesday, April 6. The voice will belong to Bob Evans, who served last summer as business manager of the Mansfield baseball club in the Ohio State league. Evans, now an announcer with a Boston station, will be one of the punch-by-punch describers of the A. A. U. championship amateur fights to be staged in that city.

It wasn't exactly playing hookey from school, but A. H. Wood, Mansfield schools attendance officer, thinks something should be done about letting teachers "escape" from P. T. A. meetings under the cover of darkness. When lights went out in the city for a brief period one night this week, Wood said three teachers attempted to sneak out of a meeting at John Simpson school. They were caught in the act when the lights flashed back unexpectedly. And were the teachers' faces red?

TELLS RUBBER EMPLOYES TO REJECT PLAN

Calls Mass Meeting in Drive To Defeat Company's Request for Voluntary Cuts.

(By International News Service)

AKRON—A mass meeting to protest unemployment and proposed wage cuts in the rubber industry was to be held here today.

Speakers at the meeting, sponsered by the CIO unions of Summit county, were to be Congressman John Bernard, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite; Richard Frankenstein, organizational director of the United Automobile Workers of America, and Sherman H. Dalrymple, International president of the United Rubber Workers of America.

In a radio address last night, L. L. Callahan, president of the United Rubber Workers' local in the B. F. Goodrich company plants here urged Goodrich workers to reject a company proposal for voluntary wage cuts and hour adjustments.

Vote Tomorrow.

Callahan charged that the company "intends to build a plant in the south in the near future regardless of any action we take." Union members in Goodrich plants will vote on the proposal tomorrow.

Referring to pleas to President Roosevelt to halt rapid decentralization of the rubber industry here, Callahan said:

"Goodrich workers, vote as the president of the United States would have you vote. Vote 'no' on the wage reduction proposal.

"Voting to accept the cut will not mean that you will keep your job.

"In spite of all the newspaper talk, your union has received no guarantees that production will not be moved out of Akron."

Other rubber companies, he asserted, were prepared to meet any Goodrich wage reduction.

Reductions Requested.

The company has asked the workers to accept a cut for men employes from approximately $1.15 per hour to 90 to 95 cents, and for women from 70 to 75 cents to 60 to 65 cents.

Unless the proposal is accepted, the company said, it will expand its mechanical goods plant at Cadillac, Mich., and its tire plant at Oaks, Pa., and will establish another large plant elsewhere.

If the offer is accepted, several million dollars will be spent on plant expansion here, the company said.

DENIES RAIL CONTROL FIGHT

Chesapeake President Declares Disagreement Causes Need For Shift.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — President Charles L. Bradley said today through a formal statement that Chesapeake Corporation's directors "are unable to agree on certain important matters," but he denied a controversy existed over control of the corporation.

Chairman Robert R. Young has requested resignations from Bradley and Secretary John P. Murphy because of management differences in the holding company of which the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad is a subsidiary.

Young, Bradley, Murphy and Allan P. Kirby currently constitute the board, with one vacancy caused by the resignation of Frank F. Kolbe. A deadlock admittedly prevails, with Kirby aligned with Young.

Bradley's statement, issued through his attorneys here, said the directors "are unable to agree on certain important matters of business judgment, which makes it impossible for the corporation to function effectively."

The Cleveland financier, now in Phoenix, Ariz., added:

"In view of this situation and in accordance with my authority as president of the Chesapeake corporation, I have called a special meeting of stockholders so that the board of directors may be changed to the extent determined by the stockholders in order that it may properly reflect the desires of the stockholders and effectively carry out such desires."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Life goes on more or less serenely in Hollywood and then, all of a sudden, there is somebody to whom Hollywood wants to attest its deathless affection.

Time was when messages of the sort could be conveyed simply. A goodly bonus, a nicely dictated letter, or a telegram of love, gratitude, and all that and that would get over the idea.

No more. Nothing short of a testimonial banquet will do. That means Hollywood must drop what it's doing that evening, put on its glad rags and assemble to do honor to One Who

The test, bang, Hollywood style, by now has settled down into a comfortable formula. Like this:

Everybody who is anybody and couldn't think up an excuse is on hand. This includes the guest of honor.

The cloak-room girls are in dither of proximity to fame. (Quote: "Girls, girls! This silver fox cape belongs to Jeanette MacDonald—feel!" And did you see Gene Raymond isn't he DARLING!")

* * *

Dinner, of course — and in courses. The usual things. Chicken or squab, always. And ice cream shaped like Leo the Lion, or the Great Seal of Warner Bros., or the Goldwyn Touch. Something significant.

And then—at long last and too soon—the speeches.

Joe Schenck (or somebody else) arises, clears his throat and has quite a few well-chosen words presents the toastmaster who is always George Jessel (never anybody else).

Mr. Jessel, if it was Mr. Schenck remarks jovially that he and Mr. Schenck have the same tastes in some things. This brings a big laugh because everybody knows that Mr. Jessel's wife is Mrs. Joe Schenck's wife. Then Mr. Jessel makes other remarks by way of introducing various people who need no introduction, and at length—invariably—he gets around to Mr. Will H. Hays.

Mr. Hays starts in at the genesis of the motion picture, briefly outlines the course of human events from Adam to the present.

By this time occasion is ordered to observe the famous in the throes of listening to a speech. Over there sit Frank Borzage and Rudy Vallee covertly exchanging (you suspect) wisecracks; Mrs. Borzage with her eyes closed, may be listening intently but you suspect she's catching 40 winks. Gloria Youngblood with Rudy, is looking darkly beautiful. Dorothy Lamour is looking beautiful. Ilona Massey is looking beautiful.

At last the guest of honor has his innings and the game already has taken 13. If he is Eddie Cantor, he arises humbly and says he owes it all to Ida, if he is Louis B. Mayer he arises humbly and says he owes it all to loyal friends and takes up where Mr. Hays left off.

After all this of course, there is entertainment. And then—along about midnight—the party's over and all until next time.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Saturday, March 19.—"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow." Read Matthew 6:26-30.

Theology knows the technical term, "natural religion." This is supposed to be an imperfect and inferior kind of religion. Perhaps so. But it is worth remembering that one of the early Christian Fathers Tertuillian—used to speak of the anima naturaliter Christiana, the "soul naturally Christian."

Whether we approve this phrase or not will depend upon our conception of "nature." Has it anything in it to suggest Christianity? Is it compatible with Christianity? For the last generation or so men have inclined to answer all such questions in the negative. Nature is supposed to be careless, cruel and non-moral.

But the trouble is that a world so run is either running down, or headed straight for a catastrophe. Surely our generation does not need to be persuaded that cruel strife cannot be the basic law of life, otherwise life on this planet would have destroyed itself long ago. Having grown up, myself, with the proposition that pitiless competition is the normal mode of life, I am now persuaded that this supposed law must be very largely a fiction of our own minds, and that our world—left to itself—is far mohe "naturally Christian" than we suppose.

Prayer: Almighty God, the creator and sustainer of all living things, who hatest nothing which thou hast made, vouchsafe to us thine overcoming love of life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Sunday, March 20. "Who hath despised the day of small things?" Read Matthew 13:31-32.

In the prophecy of Zechariah (4:10) there is this wise warning against "despising the day of small things." The same idea recurs in Jesus' words about the mustard seed. Its initial size bears no relation to its full-grown measure. Most of the important changes in history have had just this meagre, humble, and obscure beginning.

Emerson says that each man lives all history in his own person. It may be well for us to have an eye for the "day of small things" in our own experience. So often—when the mood of honest self-criticism is upon us—our Christianity seems to us so slight a part of the sum total of our natures and characters. But the day of the small things in our lives—"the nameless, little, unremembered acts of kindness and of love"—prophesies the only individual immortality in which we can believe. Whatever the length of these days and the dimensions of these small things, we should learn to trust them more.

Prayer: Almighty God, whose thoughts are not our thoughts, free us from idolatry to this world's weights and measures, and teach us the worth and the promise of that which the world calls small. Amen.
